

ACTIMAX CELEBRATES CNA “DOUBLE”

Business communication systems company Actimax is celebrating success once again in the UK's ICT industry “Oscars”.

For the second time in just four years Essex-based Actimax has won the Converged Solutions category at the Channel Network Awards. At a prestigious ceremony in London's Park Lane, Actimax Managing Director John Massey retraced his steps to receive the same award his company first won in 2003.

Mr Massey said: “While it was a great honour to have received this award in 2003, to have won it again four years later shows that we still have the same high level of service for our clients.

“It is also a great birthday present for Actimax where we have just celebrated a successful first decade.”

Actimax won its 2007 Channel Network Award through its excellent work for client Autobytel where it supplied an Inter-Tel system.

It is also the seventh major award for Actimax since 1997 who are the leading UK expert in Computer Telephony Integration (CTI) in Southern England. The decade of awards have covered all aspects of business from customer service to technical excellence, and has resulted in sustained sales growth of over 30% per annum.

Actimax has also recently announced its best-ever trading position with turnover at its highest level yet.

John Massey adds: “The consistency in our winning another Channel Network Award is also proof of the constant high standard of work by our staff without whom we would not be having our work recognised in this way.”
